The roof is on the Communication Arts Complex and its presence, both figuratively and literally, links the new facility with the rest of the campus. The Complex is crowned with the same rounded red Ludowici clay tile that has been used for nearly one hundred years on campus buildings -- Montgomery and Cambridge Halls, Brown Chapel, Boyd Science Center, John Glenn Gym and the Manse.

This is yet another example of how the Communication Arts Complex has been painstakingly crafted to complement Muskingum's distinctive architectural look. Its brick and concrete façade echoes that of Montgomery Hall, and the detail of its decorative borders is a subtle update of the grand traditional aesthetic of the other quad buildings.

Crafted in the heart of American pottery country (New Lexington, Ohio) by 3rd and 4th generation artisans using centuries-old techniques, Ludowici roof tiles are a fitting tribute to the enduring quality of Muskingum's architecture. Since the company's founding in Italy nearly 400 years ago, Ludowici tiles have graced roofs throughout Europe and North America, including the Empire State Building.

Data Mapping

an innovative college - community collaboration

Zanesville, Ohio Mayor Jack Fenton has a word of advice for communities who must redraw their political boundaries when census numbers require a change: call Muskingum College Professor Walter Huber and his political science students.

Another local community has done just that. Since completing the Zanesville redistricting project in 2002, Huber and his students have reconfigured the political boundaries of Cambridge. With guidance from Huber and from Dr. Stephen Van Horn, Assistant Professor of Geology at Muskingum, students have the ability to provide professional redistricting options.

"They did a great job on the redistricting," Fenton said. The

"These students brought integrity and passion to everything they did ... super-motivated self-starters. I can't say enough good things about them."

Evelyn King
Assistant Director of Economic and Community Development,
City of Cambridge

students used census data and Van Horn's expertise with the college's state-of-the-art geographic information system (GIS) to produce five maps, each emphasizing different criteria as requested by Zanesville City Council. The students also created a detailed outline of the laws concerning redistricting and the procedure followed when creating the maps in order to simplify the next redistricting.

"The students brought an unbiased eye to ensure that a political issue is dealt with in a nonpolitical way and city officials are freed up for more pressing matters," explained Huber.

"Redistricting, which is required after the census numbers change, can be a burden on smaller cities because they lack the resources, technical expertise, equipment and staff to draw ward boundaries in a timely and efficient manner," Huber said. Redistricting is a technical and infrequent task, done at most every ten years when the census is taken, so city officials generally have little experience with the process. Faced with a mandate to redistrict and neither the time nor resources to do it in house, Zanesville City Service Director Mike Sims called Professor Huber for help. Based on past collaborations with the college, both Sims and Mayor Fenton had confidence in the students' abilities.

While the city is pleased with the end result, the students are fascinated by the opportunity to test theories through applied work. "There is only so much you can learn from reading the text," said Bryan Mason, who graduated from Muskingum in May 2003 with a degree in Political Science and Public Affairs. "You have a different level of understanding when your work is hands-on."

After completing an internship with Zanesville, Mason worked on the Cambridge redistricting project. "Students feel empowered by the responsibility," Mason said. "It makes you feel good, and you put more into it when your name is on it."

"I have found it incredibly challenging and rewarding," said Jessica McClure, a senior political science and religion major. "You were able to put theory into practice. I fulfilled a different role as a student; the relationship between the professor and the student wasn't hierarchical, but collegial."

"Students work harder when they realize that what they are doing matters," Huber said. "It is a powerful experience when students have the opportunity to test theories. They find that the way things work in the classroom is not necessarily how things work in the real world."

For Mason, that experience led to a paying job. While still a Muskingum student, he was hired as the interim Zoning Administrator for Zanesville and in a matter of days after graduation he was appointed as full-time Zoning Administrator for the city. "I worked as an intern for three semesters under the previous zoning director and when he moved on, he recommended me," said Mason. "Through my classes with Professor Huber, I became intrigued by small government. The internship allowed me to learn more about how things work."

Two days after beginning his first internship, Mason knew that this was the position for him.

James Hockaday, another recent graduate, found his calling as a result of his classwork and a Muskie Fellowship with Huber. Said Hockaday, "I liked political science, but now it's my life. It's what I do, and it probably wouldn't have happened without Dr. Huber."

"Collaborative learning has tremendous value. The experience forces students to stretch themselves; and the critical thinking skills, problem solving and practical experience they gain will benefit them in any career," Huber said.

The collaborations are more than professor and students, or college and community. They are also interdisciplinary, both for students and professors. Students combine regional planning and urban politics curricula with the technological skills that are required to create maps using GIS. Professors Van Horn and Huber, from the diverse disciplines of geology and political science, respectively, collaborate on GIS-based projects related to downtown development and sophisticated methods of crime analysis for cities.

Muskingum's approach to liberal arts education provides an opportunity for professors to combine teaching and research responsibilities with community service in ways that enrich student learning, Huber explained. "It's a win-win situation. The cities get tangible benefits, the students get valuable skills and it's beneficial to my own research agenda. For me, teaching is a calling. I believe that what I'm doing matters."

Muskingum College uses ArcView GIS 3.2A, which specializes in the mapping of complex data, particularly census data. With this system it is possible to work simultaneously with maps, databases, charts and graphics.

Muskingum College and Muskies are in the news – good news – more than ever before. Outstanding Muskie accomplishments continue to capture the attention of the media, and the college has become a national model for doing things right in an otherwise bleak economic environment for higher education.

Business Week

April 28, 2003

While many institutions of higher education across the country were labeled “Colleges in Crisis” in a Business Week feature, the magazine identified Muskingum College as a “pioneer” in its ability to respond to our nation’s troubled economy, particularly in ways that enable students to have access to higher education. In this article, Chairman of Muskingum’s Board of Trustees Hal Burlingame ‘62 concluded, “Higher education has to find more creative ways to make its product reachable.”

Sports Illustrated

February 17, 2003

The Princeton Offense has long been fascinating yet baffling to basketball coaches, players and fans at all levels of competition. Now, because of “code-cracker and disseminator” Jim Burson ‘63, Muskingum basketball coach, the secrets of this offense have been spread throughout the United States in high schools, colleges, universities and professional teams.

National Public Radio’s Marketplace

May 27, 2003

In its week-long segment “Higher Education in a Down Economy,” Marketplace explored the effect that the challenging economy has had on colleges and universities. Within a series whose focus was primarily on the travails of educational institutions, Muskingum College was portrayed as a flourishing institution with an innovative and creative approach to “doing business.”

The Chronicle of Higher Education

May 9, 2003

The Chronicle reported on the national trend of escalating tuition at private colleges and the impact of these increases on students and prospective students. In this environment, Muskingum “bucks the trend” by taking a more rational approach to pricing. The comments of recent graduate Jewerl Maxwell ‘03 were featured in this cover story and his photo, the only one that appeared, was on the front page.

Sports Illustrated

June 16, 2003

Sports Illustrated led off its feature “Faces in the Crowd” with Mandy Carnes ‘03, documenting the softball first baseman’s four-time first-team All-America status and the leading records she holds in home runs, runs and RBIs for the Ohio Athletic Conference. Carnes also holds NCAA records for the most career home runs and the most home runs in a season.

Dow Jones Newswires

April 1, 2003

The Dow Jones Newswires acknowledged Muskingum’s diligent work to keep its tuition increases reasonable while successfully managing the issues that naturally accompany the increasing size of its student body. Muskingum’s strategies for thriving in a competitive marketplace are highlighted, and student Ryan Donaghy ‘04 is profiled.

University Business

August 2003

In a cover article, “Is Discounting Dangerous?,” Muskingum is featured in the ‘Solutions’ section and is described as a “classic example of returning from a tuition-discounting pattern to flat tuition.” Muskingum is “the poster child for this particular approach because it was successful for them. They were able to reach their enrollment and financial goals,” said Jerry Davis, vice president for research at the Lumina Foundation for Education. Muskingum’s across-the-board reduction in tuition is noted and discussed, along with discounting practices at other institutions.

The Chronicle of Higher Education

August 1, 2003

Muskingum College’s tuition cut in 1996 made national news then, and continues to make headlines, this time as the focus of a full-page article. “Seven years later...Muskingum is thriving. Enrollment is up 60 percent, the college is putting up its first new academic building in 30 years, and students are no longer coming just from the immediate area...” It is indeed an honor that The Chronicle chose Muskingum to demonstrate how, in difficult times, “some private colleges have embraced strategies that have allowed them to not only survive but also prosper.”

Outstanding writing and communication skills have long been hallmarks of a Muskingum College education. In this Muskie reading list, we are proud to highlight published works by alumni, faculty and staff. From diverse worlds – physics, philosophy, leadership, writing, painting, education, technology, history, costumes — these authors share their expertise and their creative passions with their audiences.

Making Morality: Pragmatist Reconstruction in Ethical Theory

Dr. Todd Lekan

Associate Professor of Philosophy, Chair of the Department of Religion and Philosophy. Vanderbilt University Press: Nashville, 2003. ISBN 0-8265-1421-9. www.vanderbilt.edu/vupress

Dr. Lekan's call for a more pragmatic concept of morality has been cited as an important new contribution to the field of moral theory. Rather than viewing moral norms as "timeless truths" or "subjective whims," he argues that they are "habits transmitted through practices" – and thus can be evaluated and changed as new challenges and circumstances occur in our society. In reviews, fellow philosophers have praised his ability to thoughtfully juxtapose classic American ethical theories with creative responses to current ethical issues.

The Fowler Family Celebrates Statehood and a Wedding: an Illustrated History with Paper Dolls

with co-authors Mary K. Inman and Norma Lu Meehan. Texas Tech University Press: Lubbock, Texas, 2003. ISBN 0-89672-502-2.

History comes alive once again in this second volume about the Fowler family. In the first volume, this fictional family settled on the Little Miami River in 1789. They have prospered in the ensuing decades and, in 1803, are ready to celebrate events both personal and historic. Museum-quality paper dolls, based on the holdings of ten North American museums, accompany the extensively-researched text. The authors also conduct living history presentations.

Eureka...The Superlight Speed Physics and Divinity

Corina-Oana Petre '03

with co-author Dr. Dinu-Stefan T. Moraru. AGORA Publishing House: Calarasi, Romania, 2001. ISBN 973-8241-04-9.

This breakthrough monograph moves beyond Einstein's theory of relativity in exploring the boundaries between theoretical physics and theology. Complex mathematical models underpin the theory, and the restoration of da Vinci's 'The Last Supper' is used as an example of practical application. The distinguished former Nobel candidate, physicist, mathematician, professor, civil engineer and inventor Dr. Moraru has been mentor to fellow-Romanian Corina Petre since her youth. A full member of the New York Academy of Sciences since the age of 19, Ms. Petre graduated with majors in neuroscience and physics and is a PhD candidate at the University of Texas.

St. Patrick's People: Irish & English Catholics in Early Ohio History

Dr. Lorle Porter

Emeritus Professor of History with co-authors Donald Schlegel, Kathy Kreppner Graham and Pearl Gallagher Reischman. New Concord Press: Zanesville, Ohio, 2003. ISBN: 1-8879-3287-9. www.newconcordpress.com

In her seventh book, the noted historian and author establishes that religious persecution drove much of the English and Irish Catholic immigration to America and tells the story of the resulting rich heritage of Catholicism in Ohio. Family pedigrees, historical maps, church and cemetery records, a detailed timeline, diaries of traveling priests, dozens of privately-owned photos and other artifacts enrich the telling of this important element of our nation's history.

Educational Technology Specialist: A Concise Handbook & Working Model for Training Effectiveness

Dr. Hong (Carol) Yin Sun

User Support Specialist, Computer and Network Services; Lecturer in Art. Arbor Hill Press: Chicago, 2000. ISBN 1-890156-04-3.

In her latest publication, educator-artist-technologist Hong Yin Sun has created an invaluable resource for the 'new' world of education, in which the effective integration of technology is an imperative. Dr. Sun believes that the use of computer applications is a kind of art, and in her book she offers an artistic perspective on technology integration. Designed for all users regardless of technology background, the book presents adaptable concepts and practical examples that easily translate across diverse educational settings.

Enriching the Curriculum Through Service Learning

Carol W. Kinsley '59

co-author and editor with Kate McPherson. Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development: Alexandria, Virginia, 1995. ISBN 0-87120-246-8.

The national movement toward incorporating service learning into the curriculum is one of the most important trends in K-12 education today. As former U.S. Secretary of Education Richard Riley notes in his forward to this book, "When we enrich students' academic experiences with service activities that enable them to make valued contributions to the community, we also create a sense of engagement that enhances a student's motivation." In this practical and informative guide, Kinsley and her co-author present 21 outstanding service-learning projects from a broad spectrum of educational settings.

Rix Mills Remembered: An Appalachian Boyhood

Paul Patton '49

The Kent State University Press: Kent, Ohio, 2003. ISBN 0-8733-8753-8. www.kentstateuniversitypress.com

Returning to his home town of Rix Mills in rural Appalachian Ohio in 1985,

Paul Patton was profoundly shocked by the sight of once-beloved landscape that had been devastated by strip mining. The self-taught artist and retired elementary school principal resurrected his childhood by painting the memories of his heart. His folk-style paintings are carried by galleries in Ohio and New York City and is owned by many private collectors. In this book, which presents 100 of his 500-plus paintings, Patton used both narrative and images to recount local traditions and small town ways of life, forever honoring one boy's cherished community. Patton died in 1999.

Write or Wrong Cartoons

Joyce Davidson '52

author and illustrator. Davidson Ventures/River City Press: Jacksonville, 2002. ISBN 0-9704987-9-9.

As classmates of Joyce Davidson well know, she has long been drawing cartoons, and her first book is a collection of "writer's foibles".

As a teacher of K-12 gifted studies, speech, drama, and English, and as a writer of articles, poems, and short stories, she is intimately familiar with how the written word takes shape. Writers and avid readers alike will chuckle at her witty depictions of the often circuitous and even mysterious creative process. Davidson's current writing project, Sunken Roads, is a novel of the Civil War.

America's New Vision: Our Leaders Point the Way

Doris Lee McCoy

includes Philip Caldwell '40, John Glenn '43, Jack Hanna '69 and Craig Ruth '52. First Books Library Publishers: Bloomington, 2003. ISBN 1-4033-3460-9.

Four of the 100 leaders -- "the most creative minds in America today" -- who are included in this book are Muskies. Craig Ruth, retired Managing Director of Trammell Crow Company, notes that expanding change in a time of economic contraction is effective strategy for business success. Philip Caldwell, former CEO of Ford Motor Company, comments on opportunities for global social development. Astronaut and Senator John Glenn reflects on the impact of curiosity and a "can-do" attitude. Jack Hanna, Director Emeritus of the Columbus Zoo and television host of Jack Hanna's Animal Adventures, inspires respect for nature and for good stewardship of our environment.

Muskingum College will publish brief announcements of books published by and about alumni, students and faculty. Please send an autographed copy of the book and if available, the press release, to the Office of the President. Books will be donated to the Muskingum College Library.

ALUMNI WEEKEND

GOLDEN REUNION CLASS

The members of the Class of 1953 began their weekend with a private reception at the President's Manse on Friday. On Saturday, the Alumni Weekend Banquet opened with a trumpet fanfare and a processional ceremony for the class, which marched across the speakers' dais and received personal 50th reunion certificates from President Steele, Gordon Litt, trustee and president of the alumni council, and Dr. George Sims, vice president for academic affairs.

The members of the class of 1953 have long been known for their commitment to Muskingum, and their generous 50th anniversary gift deepened this legacy. Class chairs Nelson 'Lin' Carter, C. William & Betty Taylor Fischer and James R. & Margaret Brown Sims presented $505,000 to the college during the alumni weekend banquet – within days, the amount grew to $535,000!

ALUMNI WEEKEND

The 2003 Alumni Weekend was, as always, a celebration of good traditions, good friends and good times.

WORSHIP SERVICE

The weekend closed, as always, with a Brown Chapel worship service conducted by the alumni. In his sermon, Bill Fischer paid eloquent tribute to the “moorings” that are instilled at Muskingum: a taste for excellence in scholarship; the comprehensive understanding that comes from looking at things from all possible perspectives; the compassion of putting the interests of others first, which inspires a vocation of service; and the commitment of oneself – the opposite of playing it safe. “Muskingum’s moorings – with them we can help make a difference for mankind and lead more fulfilling lives. They are indeed her gifts and our obligations.”

C. William Fischer '53

Through his dedicated service, C. William Fischer has made profound contributions to our nation's public policy and to higher education.

The United States Department of Education became part of the President's Cabinet in 1980 and, under appointment by President Carter, Fischer was the first Assistant Secretary of Education.

Fischer's distinguished career in the executive branch began in 1957; he first served in the Bureau of the Budget (reorganized as the Office of Management and Budget in 1970) as Deputy Associate Director for Human Resources and as Deputy Assistant Director of Legislative Reference.

When the newly-created Department of Energy assumed the responsibilities of dozens of other federal energy programs in 1977, Fischer became Deputy Administrator of the DOE's Energy Information Administration.

Since 1981 Fischer has devoted his considerable talents to leadership in higher education. He was vice president for budget and finance for the University of Colorado until 1989, and was executive vice president of Brandeis University before joining Northwestern University in 1990 as senior vice president for business and finance.

In 1988 Fischer was elected as a Fellow of the influential National Academy of Public Administration (NAPA), where he has served as vice chair and as treasurer during his tenure. Fellows are selected for their "sustained and outstanding contribution to the field of public administration".

In 1964 Fischer received his master's degree in public administration from Harvard's Graduate School of Public Administration, the legendary forerunner of the Kennedy School of Government. In 1991, he received Muskingum's Distinguished Service Award and in 2003 the college conferred upon him an honorary doctor of public service degree. He has been a valued member of Muskingum's Board of Trustees since 1997.

A native of Pittsburgh, Fischer served with the U.S. Army Signal Corps in Korea following his graduation from Muskingum.

Fischer and his wife, Betty Taylor Fischer '53, live in Colorado. They have four children and nine grandchildren.

MUSKINGUM COLLEGE

158th Commencement

May 10, 2003

329 Muskies joined the ever-growing Long Magenta Line during Muskingum's 158th commencement ceremonies held May 10th. In her welcome President Steele said, "Today, you each assume a new role. Today you become part of the Long Magenta Line and a part of what makes us great."

Business leader Walter R. Young '66 delivered the commencement address, "Muskies, Caterpillars and Enron: Some Thoughts on Change and Values." The college conferred on Young an honorary doctorate of public service in recognition of his professional achievements. President Anne C. Steele praised Young's "courage to innovate, courage to embrace change and courage to remain committed to core human values."

Representing the senior class, Jewel Maxwell said, "Muskingum creates something truly special. Treasure the degree you have earned and all that has come with it." Dr. Laura J. Hilton, assistant professor of history, delivered the faculty charge, and paraphrased the poet George Santayana: "Live your life as though you have already learned from your past and as if you do not want to be condemned to repeat it."

Baccalaureate Service

Dr. Ashley (Jerry) Beavers, college minister, presided over the baccalaureate service. In his address, "Weirdness, Wisdom and Wonder", he said, "you have gained wisdom like Socrates', of knowing what you don't know and knowing how to learn it. If Muskingum has done its job, you will leave here today with the wonder that is born of such wisdom."

11th Graduate School Commencement

August 9, 2003

Inaugural Class of Master of Arts in Teaching Degree

Muskingum's annual graduate school commencement activities were enriched this year by the conferral of the first master of arts in teaching degrees in addition to its traditional master of arts in education degree.

C. William Fischer '53, a nationally distinguished public administrator and long-time member of Muskingum's Board of Trustees, addressed the graduates, saying that the key to creating a successful and meaningful career as an educator is to hold fast to a strong set of core leadership values.

In honor of his career achievements, Fischer was granted an honorary doctorate of public service, which was presented by President Steele and by Arnold R. Weber, President Emeritus of Northwestern University. In conferring the degree, President Steele described Fischer as "a dedicated public servant and educator who, through his work, has changed the lives of countless Americans."

STUDENT PROFILE

Sayuri Matsuura '03

PhD candidate in molecular biology at University of Wisconsin

“I feel that the same spirits of imagination and creativity inspire science and art. In both, abstract concepts are transformed into elegant and beneficial truths. I understood this only after I had studied chemistry, molecular biology, philosophy, ceramics and poetry at Muskingum.”

Sayuri Matsuura

Sayuri received 1st prize in the Academy of American Poets University and College Poetry Prize Competition, and was selected as featured writer of the 2002-2003 edition of Muskingum's literary magazine.

Sayuri Matsuura is the quintessential liberal arts student. In an introductory creative writing class, Sayuri's gift for language was so impressive that the professor, Dr. Jane Varley, assumed she was an English major and was "flabbergasted to learn that she was majoring in biology."

To be precise, the magna cum laude graduate carried an interdisciplinary double major in molecular biology and chemistry. Dr. Paul Szalay, Assistant Professor of Chemistry and Sayuri's research advisor, called her "a true student of the liberal arts. She dove deeply into her work, gaining as much understanding of ancillary information as about the main topic." Her senior seminar research was in materials science, a highly specialized subset of chemistry, working with magnetics. Her faculty advisor, Associate Professor of Chemistry Deepamala Perera, commented, "Sayuri is more than a student – she has always been a scholar."

An exceptional ceramist, Sayuri took every available ceramics course and also conducted independent studio work. Using her knowledge of chemistry, she developed her own clay and glazes to achieve her aesthetic goals. Assistant Professor of Art Ken McCollum said, "Sayuri has great passion for everything she does. Her artistic communication incorporated content and meaning that is far beyond pottery. She put in the time and worked hard at everything she did. She is exemplary of Muskingum's mission."

Following a semester in Japan, Sayuri became active in Muskingum's international student organization, World Vision, and served as Vice President. She said, "Because of my overseas experience, I've realized that it is essential to encourage cross-cultural friendships and understanding among young people who will help to shape this modern world."

For Sayuri, the availability and commitment of her professors were the most important aspect of her Muskingum education. With their encouragement, she pursued internships at Case Western and Baylor College of Medicine, which solidified her decision to remain in molecular biology. She is now a PhD candidate at the University of Wisconsin.

Walter R. Young came to national prominence as a distinguished business leader with his turnaround success of Champion Enterprises, Inc. Champion, a producer of manufactured homes, was on the brink of bankruptcy when Young assumed its leadership in 1990. During his tenure as president, CEO and chairman of the board, Young implemented innovative strategic changes in every dimension of the company. Today Champion is the world's largest homebuilder, the leading manufactured housing builder and a FORTUNE 500 company.

Young's results were acclaimed by Fortune, Forbes, Business Strategy, Crain's, Investor's Business Daily and The Wall Street Journal. He was named 'Industry Person of the Year' three years in a row by the Manufactured Housing Institute and also served as the Institute's chairman. In 2000 he received a Congressional appointment to the National Academies of Science Committee on Housing Technologies and served on its Blue Ribbon board evaluation committee. In 2003 Champion was ranked thirtieth in corporate governance by Business Ethics.

Following his graduation from Muskingum, Young earned an MBA from Pennsylvania State University in 1968. He began his career with BF Goodrich, where he demonstrated and honed his skills in quickly bringing floundering businesses to profitability and growth. After nineteen years there, he joined the Budd Company, a leading supplier to the Big 3 auto makers, followed by the Henley Group, a merchant bank. For both companies he oversaw multiple business units and in record time restored several to profitability and brought others to profitability for the first time.

Young received an honorary doctor of public service degree from Muskingum in 2003.

Ryan Alexander

Ryan Alexander

Baseball, Outfielder

The epitome of a scholar-athlete, Ryan was named OAC Scholar-Athlete of the Month shortly after he graduated magna cum laude from Muskingum in 2003. He was named Academic All-American, was a unanimous choice for the first team Academic All-Ohio Athletic Conference, and was a winner of the OAC's Clyde A. Lamb Award, which recognizes the conference's top student-athletes.

Ryan was also named to the first team All-OAC, the second team All-Mid East Region of the American Baseball Coaches Association and received Muskingum's William G. Moore Award for Outstanding Senior Male Athlete.

"Ryan's dedication in the classroom and on the field is admired by his classmates and teammates," said head baseball coach Gregg Thompson. "He has been a tremendous asset."

Adam Lescalleet - Ryan Lescalleet

Golf

Adam and Ryan Lescalleet were mainstays of the men's golf team during their Muskingum careers and received national recognition for their remarkable talent and dedication to the game.

Adam was a three-time All-American and a three-time All-Ohio Athletic Conference player and in 2003 was named OAC Golfer of the Week four times. In 2002 he finished third at the NCAA Division III Golf Championships, just four strokes shy of medalist honors.

Ryan was a two-time All-American Honorable Mention, a three-time All-OAC winner and an OAC Golfer of the Week. He finished 2003 tied for fourth place in the OAC and was medalist at the 2003 Wooster Invitational.

"Adam and Ryan are fine young men and tremendous golfers," said head golf coach Dave Kirby. "They are wonderful representatives of this institution, their family and our golf team."

Ryan Lescalleet

Mandy Carnes

Softball, First Base

Mandy Carnes virtually rewrote all of softball's record books, earning inclusion in Sports Illustrated's "Faces in the Crowd" (June 16). Mandy leads the nation for the most home runs in one season, 24, and the most career home runs, 59 — and broke her previous national records to set these. She was named first team All-American each of her four years and was twice named Louisville Slugger/National Fastpitch Coaches of America Player of the Week, the first Muskingum athlete ever to accomplish this.

Mandy is a four-time first team All-Great Lakes Region player and also earned first team ALL-OAC honors all four years. The two-time OAC Player of the Year also holds 11 conference records.

Head Coach Donna Newberry commented, "Mandy has had a tremendous impact on our program. It is no coincidence that our 172-24 record, including a national championship and four undefeated league seasons, was achieved during her Muskingum career."

Mandy Carnes

With this pitch, Mandy set a national record for career home runs.

COACHES OF THE YEAR

Donna Newberry

Softball Coaching Staff

Head Coach Donna Newberry, Assistant Coach LeeAnn Fonner and Pitching Coach Jen Segner were honored by their peers for their accomplishments with the Muskingum softball team in 2003. The National Fastball Coaches Association named them Central Regional Softball Coaching Staff of the Year and the Ohio Athletic Conference named them the Softball Coaching Staff of the Year.

With more than 600 career wins and eight coach-of-the-year selections, Coach Donna Newberry is a dominant figure in collegiate softball. She and her team brought Muskingum its first-ever national athletics title in 2001. Coach Newberry, in her 30th year at Muskingum, is also assistant athletic director and professor of health and physical education.

LeeAnn Fonner was a 4-year letterwinner at Kent State University ('02), and was named to the first teams of the Louisville Slugger All-Mideast Region and All-Mid American Conference.

Former All-American Muskie pitcher Jen Segner '00 holds four national records and six conference records. She is the only Muskie ever to win the prestigious OAC Clyde W. Lamb Award Scholarship, which recognizes the top two scholar-athletes in the conference.

Dave Kirby

Head Coach,
Men's Golf

Coach Dave Kirby was honored by his peers with two prestigious professional honors in 2003. He was named Men's Golf Coach of the Year by the Ohio Athletic Conference and by the National Association of Golf Coaches for the Great Lakes Regional.

Under Coach Kirby's leadership, the Muskie golfers have become a team of national stature. They finished 13th nationwide in their third consecutive NCAA Tournament, were ranked 14th in the nation by the Golf Coaches Association of America and were ranked #1 in the Great Lakes Region. They clinched a perfect 20-0 OAC record and 45-1 overall in 2003.

Lt. Col. Michael W. Viers, United States Marine Corps, donated a kidney to ten year-old Shawna Crawford of Hardeesville, South Carolina in a five-hour procedure on March 3, 2003 at the Medical University Hospital of South Carolina. Shawna was an uninsured immigrant child from England living in the U.S. with her British mother and American father. Mike had read of her life-threatening condition and wanted to help. Tests showed that he was the correct match. Initially he asked to remain anonymous, but reconsidered at the request of Shawna's family, who felt that circulating this story might encourage others to be willing to donate. The publicity generated by Michael's generosity has resulted in the creation of funds to support Shawna's post-operative care. Shawna celebrated her eleventh birthday in October. Mike is in his 23rd year with the USMC and at the time of the donation was Assistant Chief of Staff, Operations and Training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at Parris Island, S.C. He is now Executive Officer and Associate Professor of Naval Science in Naval ROTC at Carnegie Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

Mike and his wife Sue have two sons, Andy '05 and Adam, a senior at Ohio Wesleyan. A nephew, Matthew Viers, is a Muskingum freshman.

Faculty/Staff/Friends

Muskingum Mourns Death of Former Trustee Mary Ann Arthur
Mary Ann Arthur, civic leader and former member of Muskingum's Board of Trustees, died on March 8, 2003 in Columbus, Ohio. Mrs. Arthur joined Muskingum's board in 1973 and served on the executive and search committees during her tenure.

Deeply committed to the arts, she served on the Collections Committee of the National Gallery in Washington, D.C. and, with the Columbus Art Museum, chaired the Women's Board and was active in the docents' program and committee on collections. She also served on the Greater Columbus and Upper Arlington Arts Councils.

In 1999 The Ohio State University gave its John B. Gerlach, Sr. volunteer award to Mrs. Arthur and her husband John. Her charitable activities also included the OSU Medical Center and the Arthur G. James Cancer Hospital. She was a trustee of Planned Parenthood of Central Ohio and a member of the Chadwick Arboretum Advisory Committee and a number of other organizations.

Mrs. Arthur graduated from The Ohio State University in 1954. She is survived by her husband of 49 years, two daughters and sons-in-law, a son and daughter-in-law and six grandchildren.

2003 Distinguished Service Award Honorees

“... enduring values of service and leadership ... who have made a qualitative difference through their exemplary service to humankind and through their professional endeavors ... ”

Judge Howard S. Zwelling

Dr. Carol Williamson Kinsley

Dr. J. Stark Thompson

Dr. Carol Williamson Kinsley '59 has dedicated her life's work to the advancement of service-learning, a core strategy in meaningful educational reform and improvement. Through her outstanding contributions on the national, regional, state and local levels, service-learning programs are being integrated into school curriculums everywhere and are becoming a natural part of the learning process.

Dr. Kinsley was a presidential appointee to the Board of Directors of the Corporation for National and Community Service and served two terms from 1995 to 2001. Currently she is vice-chair of the National Service-Learning Partnership, which is under the sponsorship of the W.W. Kellogg Foundation and the John Glenn Institute for Public Service and Public Policy.

Reinforcing her contributions to national policy issues in her field, Dr. Kinsley is active on the grassroots level. Her consulting services are sought after by state departments of education, communities, educational institutions and businesses who wish to understand, develop and implement service-learning programs. She is a valued advisor and frequent council member for the State of Massachusetts on matters relating to service-learning.

“It is my pleasure to introduce this timely publication on service learning that will help the nation's teaching force in their efforts to reform schools and improve education....”

Richard W. Riley, Secretary, U.S. Department of Education in his foreword to Kinsley's Enriching the Curriculum Through Service Learning.

Judge Howard S. Zwelling '59 earned his juris doctorate from Ohio Northern University after graduating from Muskingum in 1959. He practiced civil and criminal law for 22 years in Zanesville and other areas of Ohio. In 1983, he was elected Municipal Court judge and then, in 1999, was elected to the Court of Common Pleas in Muskingum County.

The Chief Justice of the Ohio Supreme Court appointed him to the Court's Committee on Dispute Resolution in 1989. The committee created a 'circuit rider' mediation program which provided funding and resources enabling municipal and county courts to recruit, train and utilize volunteers in mediated resolution of small claims disputes.

Under Judge Zwelling's leadership, Zanesville, Cambridge, Lancaster and Marietta now have nationally-recognized mediation programs. He also established a successful peer mediation system in the Zanesville City Schools. This program brought volunteers into 3rd - 12th grade classrooms to help children learn how to mediate their disputes and reduce the incidences of violence.

Judge Zwelling is a past president of the Ohio Association of Municipal and County Judges and the Muskingum County Bar Association, and was the 2002 Zanesville Sertoman of the Year.

Dr. J. Stark Thompson '63 has led a distinguished career in business, as a scientist and in service to others. In 1988 he was appointed president and CEO of Life Technologies, Inc. Under his leadership, LTI became the leading developer, manufacturer and supplier, worldwide, of products and services to the life sciences and biotechnology industries.

Intrinsic to LTI's success was its dedicated, reliable workforce. Dr. Thompson understood this imperative, and established pioneering programs whose success in developing more committed, more productive, better-trained and better-qualified employees brought him national recognition.

Prior to joining Life Technologies, Dr. Thompson enjoyed a successful 21-year tenure at DuPont, where he served as general manager of several domestic and international businesses. He was Business Director of the global Clinical Systems Division until his departure in 1988.

Dr. Thompson serves on numerous corporate and non-profit boards. He is chair of the Board of Visitors of OSU's College of Biological Sciences, where he did his doctoral work in physiological biochemistry. He is a long-standing member of Muskingum's Board of Trustees and a cornerstone benefactor of the college's Communication Arts Complex now under construction.
