

MUSKINGUM COLLEGE 1974

New Concord, Ohio

"And where was it that you stayed?"

The womb, Womb 74. Well, actually, womb 73-74. We had a suite, very accommodating. Seclusion and protection in the Arcadian tradition. We savored the best of it, drinking it in. Autumn draughts of vintage leaves, crushed brown underfoot, then swirling in a blast up, up eyes following past the scattered dome of red tiled roofs etched against a sky so blue it made you walk faster, and finally run, chasing the colliding harmonies of a bright dying season.

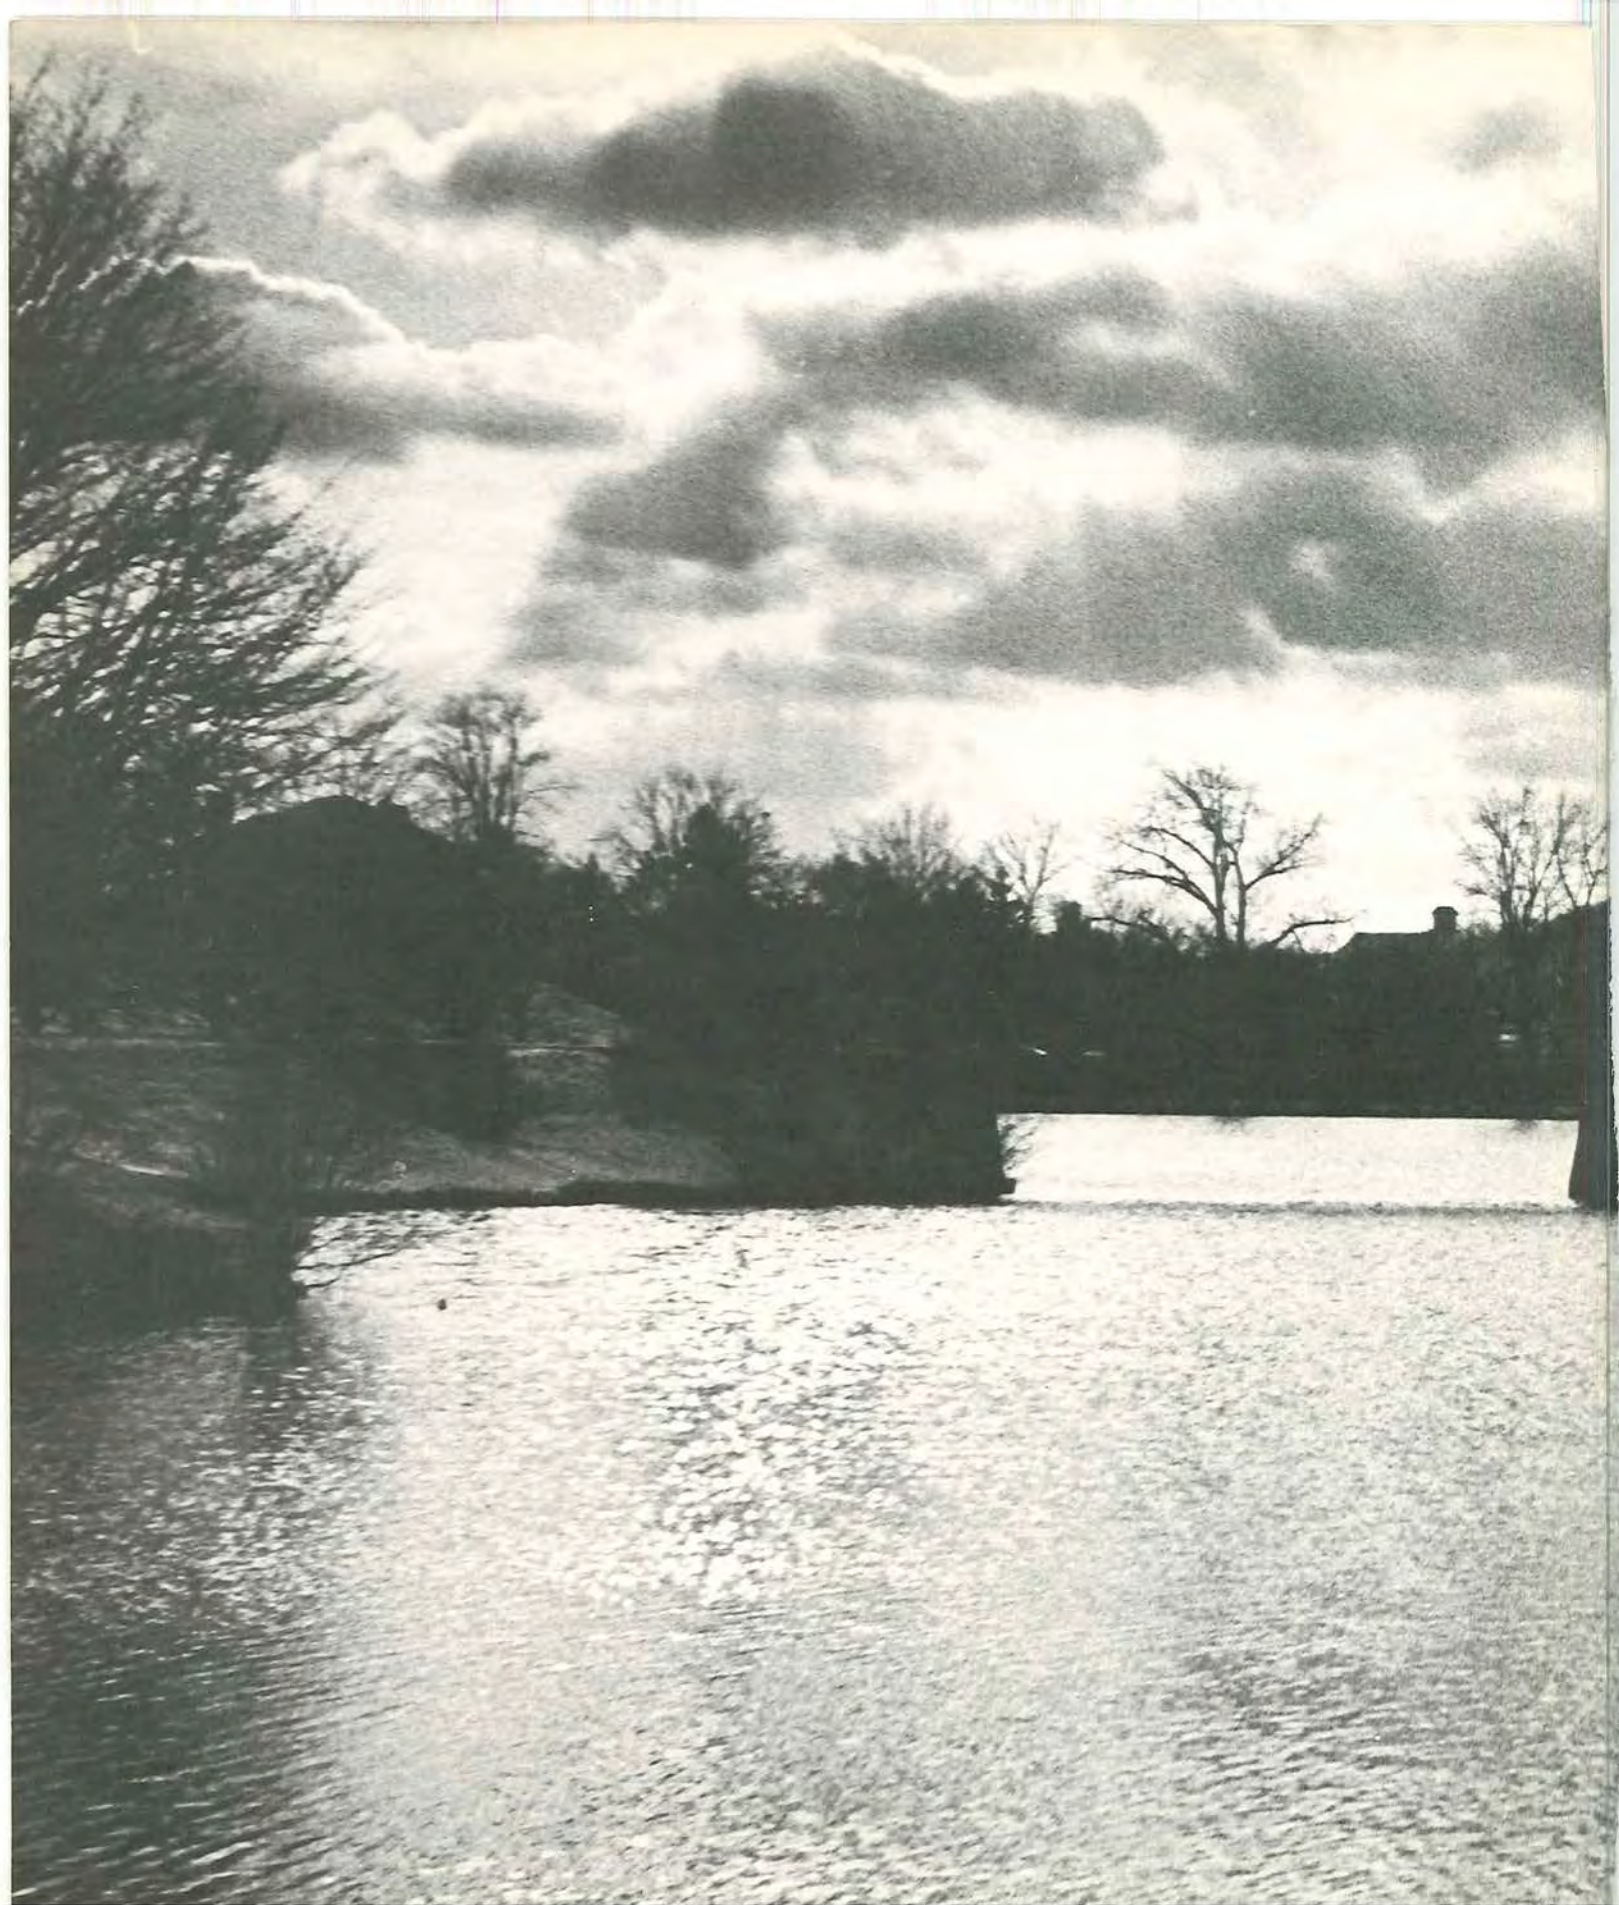

"But what about issues; an intellectual debate sweeping the campus, political differences resulting in a clash of abstractions, rapiers at dusk between administration and students?"

Well, pursuing the established track, you're referring, perhaps, to the winter of our discontent? To deny it would be to affront a few, bruise the professional dignity of some others, and affect the rest very slightly. At its best the pastoral soothed, urging thought and reflection; a growing, at times fitful, at times slow. But as for the entire Band striking up, echoing a cacophony through the hollow, it didn't happen. No, winter dodged the raindrops and we sidestepped snowballs. A certain art to that. The lake turned to glass and the brave ones followed the whipsnap sounds of cracks, sidestepping across, crablike. The hill was fast, and good, gleaming like a polished belt sander ready to scrape off a trayer's underside in one fell swoop to the bottom and into/over the stream.

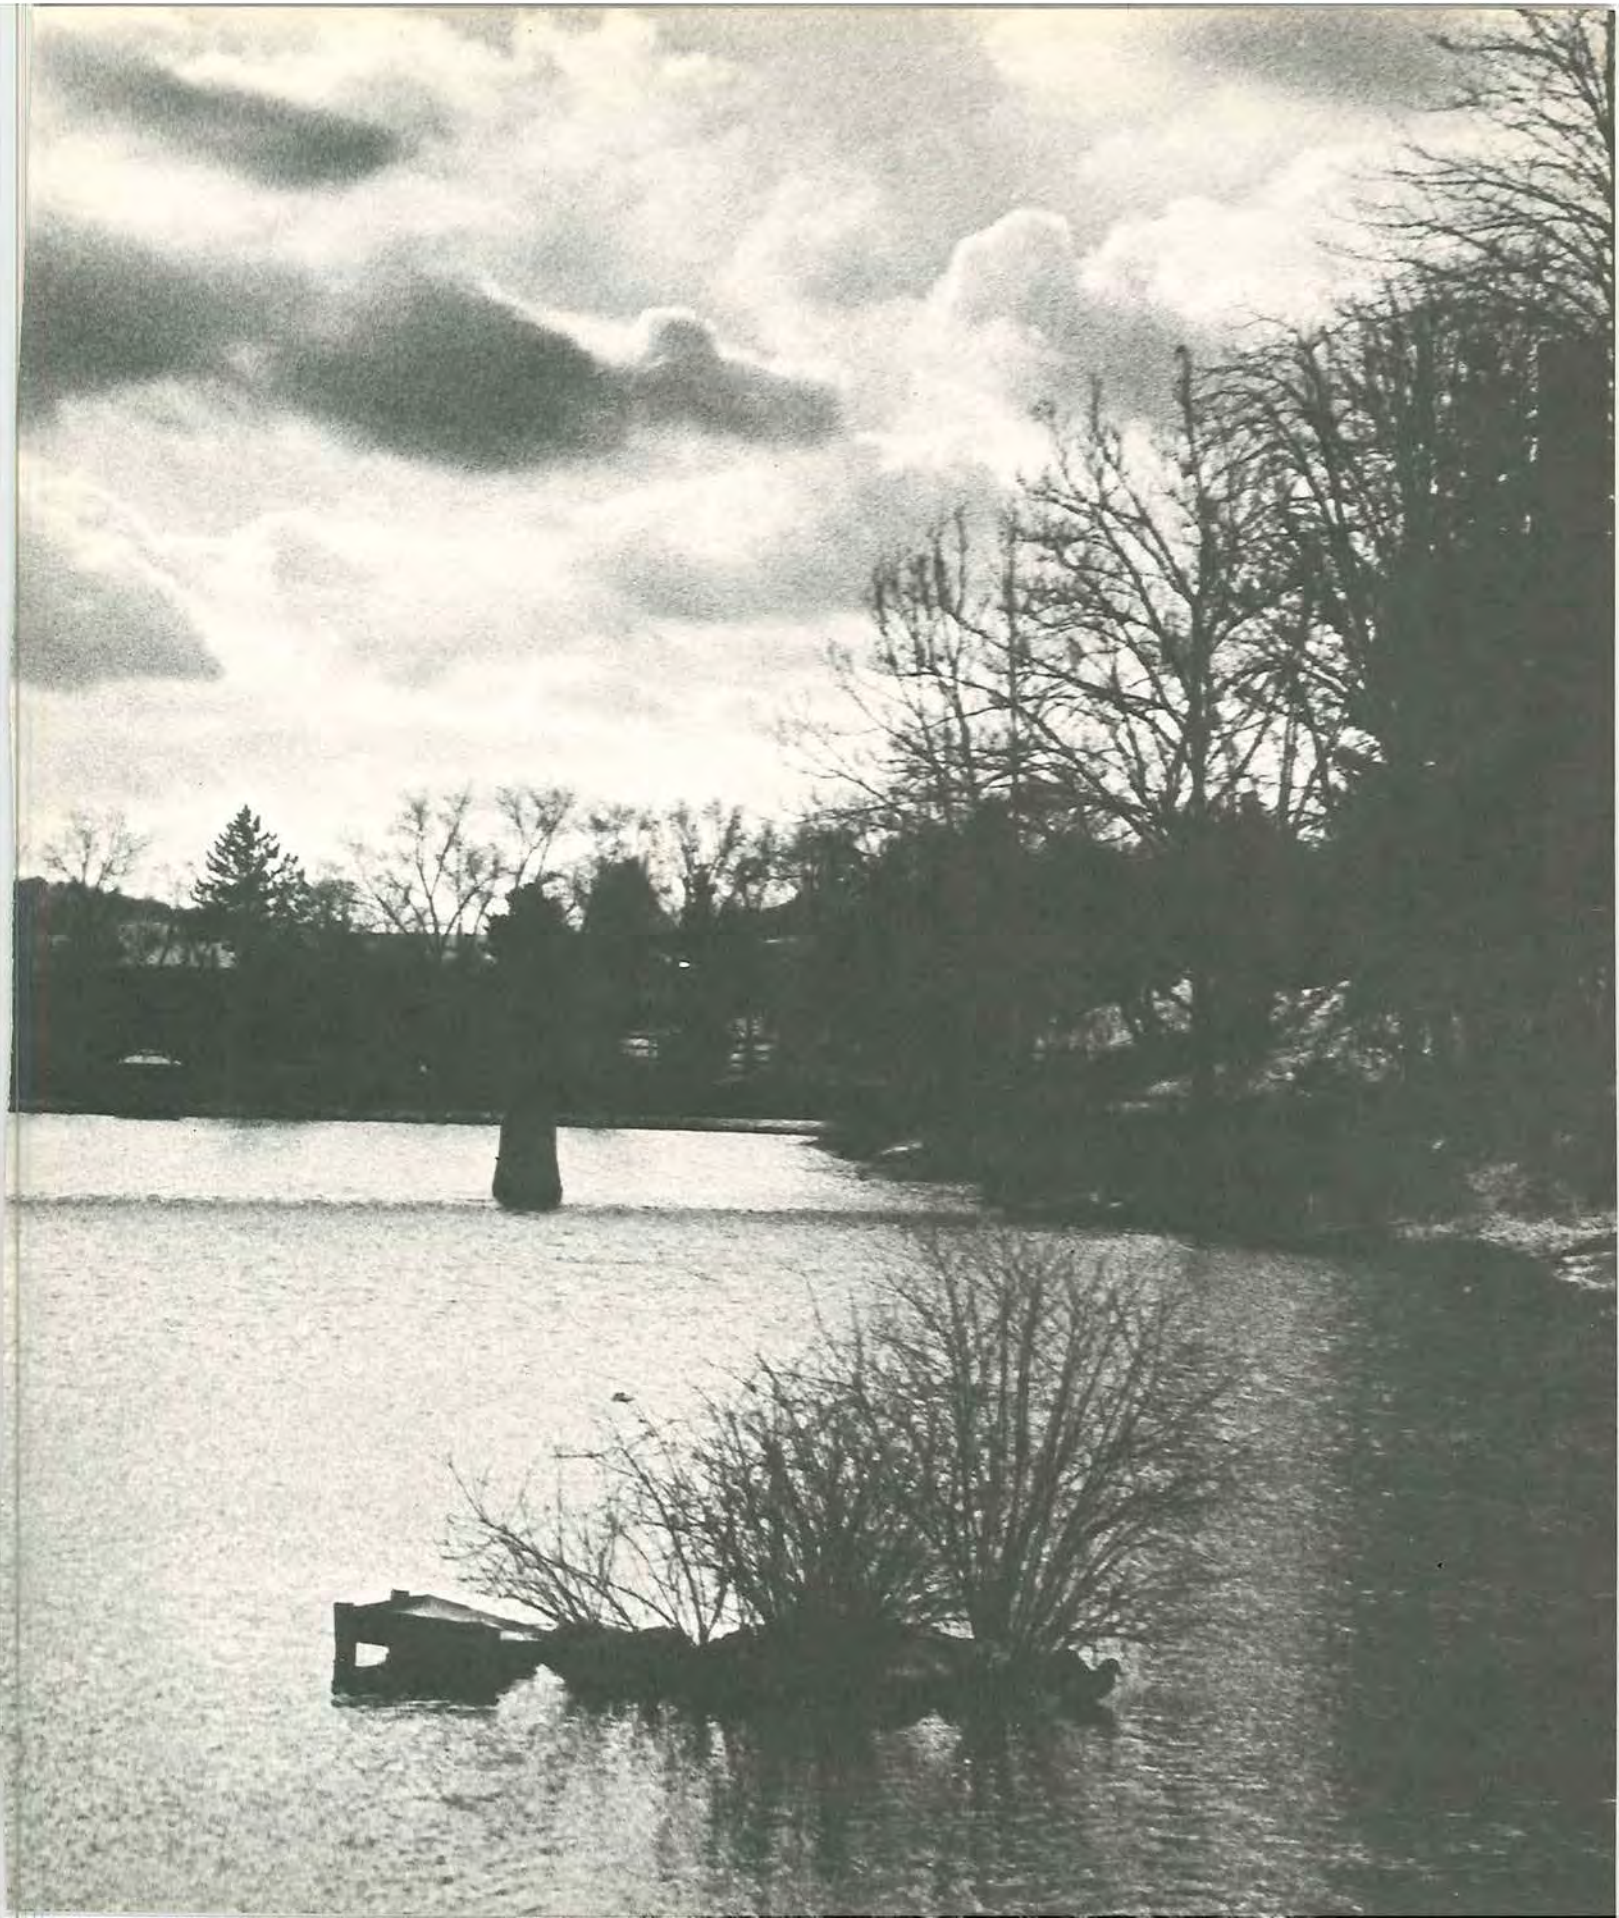

"You speak well of it, but its too closed off, too protected."

Wombs generally are. You'd like to hear something negative? The question is in your eyes. Sure, it isolated us, suspended time, and at its worst encouraged apathy. But are you chiding us for the things we've missed or for that which we've gained? Spring was a gift, Birth and Rebirth. Fields of spring beauties, like moon washed white gravel beaches strewn on a green sea, never hurting tender feet. Pines swaying in the breeze and the fragrance intoxicated us. Green everywhere, grown thick and lush and sweet. Snatches between papers and testing to sip of it. A big swallow could paralyze. Very much is in the tasting. And if we learned to appreciate while we were surrounded by it, then we learned something. It was temporary, but it is ours.

LIFESTYLES

When a particular place in a certain environment
must serve as a residence
for a long period of time,
certain inevitable

differences; Quirks and Vagaries (human and otherwise)
are necessarily overlooked or absorbed.
Otherwise one withers,
or transfers.

But if Good Fortune smiles, with a big m,
this, may delight and grow in the warmth of companions.
one,

M.E.

We entered the room. Her "stuff" was piled everywhere; a guitar, a few old record albums, the usual alarm clock, study lamp and typewriter. A denim jacket was thrown on the bottom bunk, subtly indicating property rights. She had disappeared somewhere. Oh well, there was a year stretching ahead of us to become acquainted in. Hopefully, we would get along.

Glancing back over the past three years and that first encounter with a roommate and dormitory living, one can come to the realization that it was all not in vain. Many of us are not exactly thrilled with the prospect of a stranger as a roommate but as the months go by, that stranger transforms into friend and enemy, comforter and agitator, teacher and pupil. Helping each other through the first pangs of homesickness, reaching, at times for one another's throats, and finally brushing away the tears as each year comes to an end are experiences unique to dormitory living.

"Leave me alone," or "I hate you," echo through the halls. Ten minutes later, laughter replaces the chastisement. To live with someone means developing the ability to understand and listen once in a while. Being able to adapt to smoke-filled rooms and outbursts of profanity without cringing eventually becomes second nature for the more innocent.

Modesty quickly dissolves and conversations become open and often, quite frank. Few topics are labeled off-limits. Minds open closed doors and receptivity to new thoughts, ideas, and lifestyles ensues. The needs for privacy at times becomes respected and is not considered rejection. Of course, cliques form and some young women are not included, which is a rarity. Some girls pledge; others do not. The dorm attempts to equalize everyone.

It is a rare experience, this dormitory living. At times emotional and mental survival seem difficult but for the most part, the personal growth one gains seems incredible when looking back.

the couch is on its side in a corner because it broke during interim & even though maintenance could have fixed it free of charge we prefer its present station & position due to the fact that our aesthetic interpretations have been so excellently molded in the eight semesters we have attended muskingum. the fireplace is a stunning example of early new concord boom, skillfully tiled in brown and beige with a black iron gate cover depicting, in relief, a stag in a hunt. during the winter months we experienced frequent primitive impulses to set ablaze the aging logs in the grate, but were hampered by the reality of bricks in the flue. due to our numerous 3 a.m. bursts of joviality the house has undergone the changes necessary to alter its status to that of "home". remove the plants, the posters, the pillows, the bottles or interesting beverages, the silent television, distinctive odors, odd sounds (occasional music), boredom, hysteria, the coat-hanger that keeps the refrigerator shut, & you have removed us. we, the people of this house fight, laugh, go to class, compete, study, complain, discuss, make it rough on the cleaning ladies, form a united front against the administration, have a high to nonexistent moral standards, are atheists gnostics catholics presbyterians & lutherans, are short tall medium fat skinny blonde brown black female single & senior, having plans of work marriage grad school. we are all intelligent. and here we sit at the edges of our seats watching john newcombe beat stan smith, north carolina beat maryland, captain kirk beat the bad guys, & kung fu beat the system while the preschoolers are under observation in the outhouse of the psych dept. playground. and they tell us it's a dog eat dog world.

Goodbye Abode. Quarters for the duration. Small and separate, like some sagging remnant of a tree fortress come crashing to earth. "I'm gonna miss this dump. It was a GOOD DEAL, even with the slopwater." Thank you, Marcus, for your constant and unerring rhythm. A shutter snap, a moment is caught on paper for others, captured long before in another place. Thank you, M. Stewart, for framing it all with the quiet artistry of your actions. Thanks are in order even if the PRESS FOR NOSTALGIA button is brushed against often. A nod to this Place, allowing moments to relax and learn, to pause in revelatory flashes together under one roof. What did we learn? (Come on, now, out of the jumbled catalogue of events there must be something. After all, wasn't it a learning experience?) Put a cap on a four year bottle and set it floating in the sea. It'll sink, right into the depths of experience. After all, it's full. We have LIVED here. All the answers weren't found. We have some solutions riddled with compromise, finding them more and more not riddled with but accompanied by, and sometimes even adorned. Always subject to change. And maybe, in this way, we'll always stay young. Goodbye Abode.

Matthew Elli

ah house—

it is finished . . . i've swept your attic floor for the last time . . . the last load of precious things are in the bus . . . i must go . . .

be out by midnight the landlord's wife screamed . . . she knows nothing of you or of me/us.

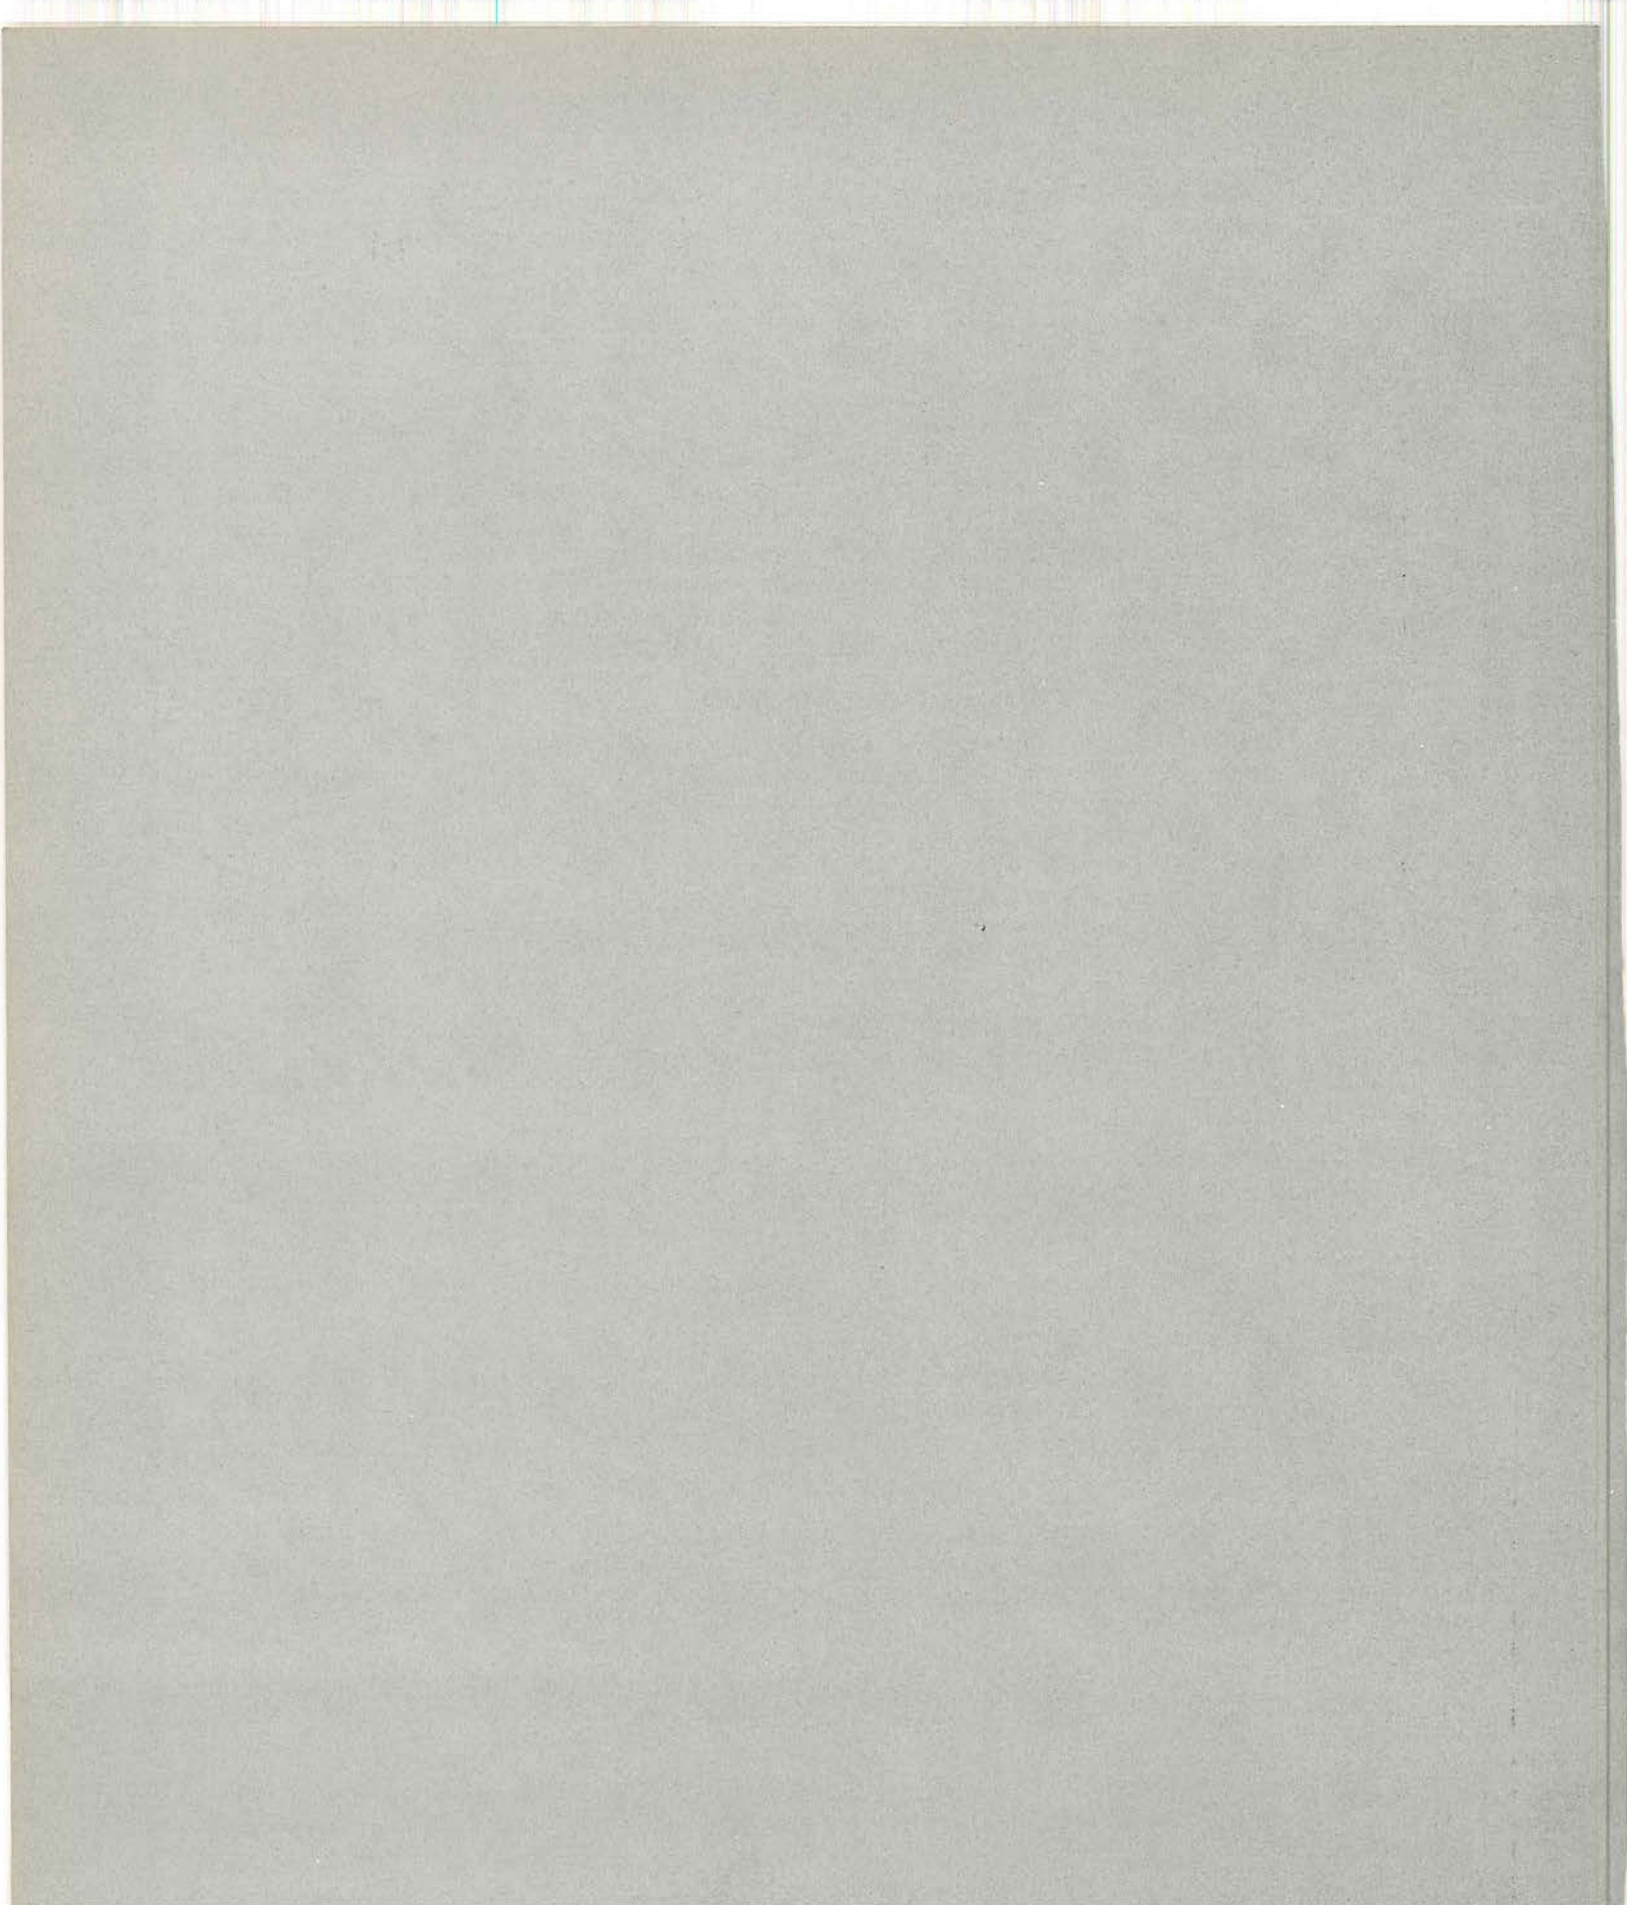

they can't begin to understand your mornings . . . your nights filled with laughter, tears and learning . . . the old friends returning to this abode because they too love you . . . a new friend meeting your old sagging walls . . . you alone remain. thank you . . . you have allowed life and learning to reign here . . . it has been a learning experience . . . that is why we were here and why we are leaving.

that old clock on the wall breaks the silence of this attic room . . . my room . . . someone else's room . . . my room.

it will stop now . . . maybe forever, as i pull the plug . . . 11:59 . . . we made it in time . . . be out by midnight the landlord's wife screamed . . . we beat you. goodbye . . . i shall not be back again.

"What I dream of is an art of balance, of purity and serenity devoid of troubling or depressing subject matter, an art which might be for every mental worker, be he business man or writer, like an appeasing influence, like a mental soother, something like a good armchair in which to rest after physical fatigue."

Buildings aren't it. The Academy had no walls. Teachers aren't enough. The title infers the presence of others. The others are us and we are the reason the rest is here. And in our best moments, we see each other and accept community, finding more where a loss was feared.

SENIORS

What pulls everything together for a graduate? Messages in the mail, heralding a future as "guest of the college?" We were all guests here in some fashion or another during the passage. How about a calculated cap and gown ritual in the gym? True, its a link among different groups of alumni, and something you can look back on as an experience. But how can baccalaureate-commencement calisthenics, that alien test of stamina for a revel worn senior, summarize the undergraduate experience? In a realm of attitudes it might be the successful completion of a beginning, the last brushstroke of good riddance, or a prelude to confusion. Or shifting, shifting, what of all the goodbyes? Brusque, drawn out, painful, full of promises. It could be any combination of these things, or a factor not mentioned. Perhaps the question is meaningless. But you did it together. Look yourselves over and sort it out.

Seniors: Ulcerous, escapist, worried, nostalgic.
Transition adult.
Watching new faces already replace us.
Walking through scenery already memories.
Gossiping with professors already fallen idols.
Outgrown dormitories; well worn dictionaries.
Library antiquaries.
Seminar blues.

Goodbye, Moho. As you sign off WMCO this morning (as opposed to all the other mornings) I see the world I have known start to flake apart like so much rust. It'll not be back again. 3rd Moore days passed, Thomas Hall and last year are gone, too. But I can walk over to them, still, and relive the fun and other stuff from ear to shining ear as I look at the geography where it all took place.

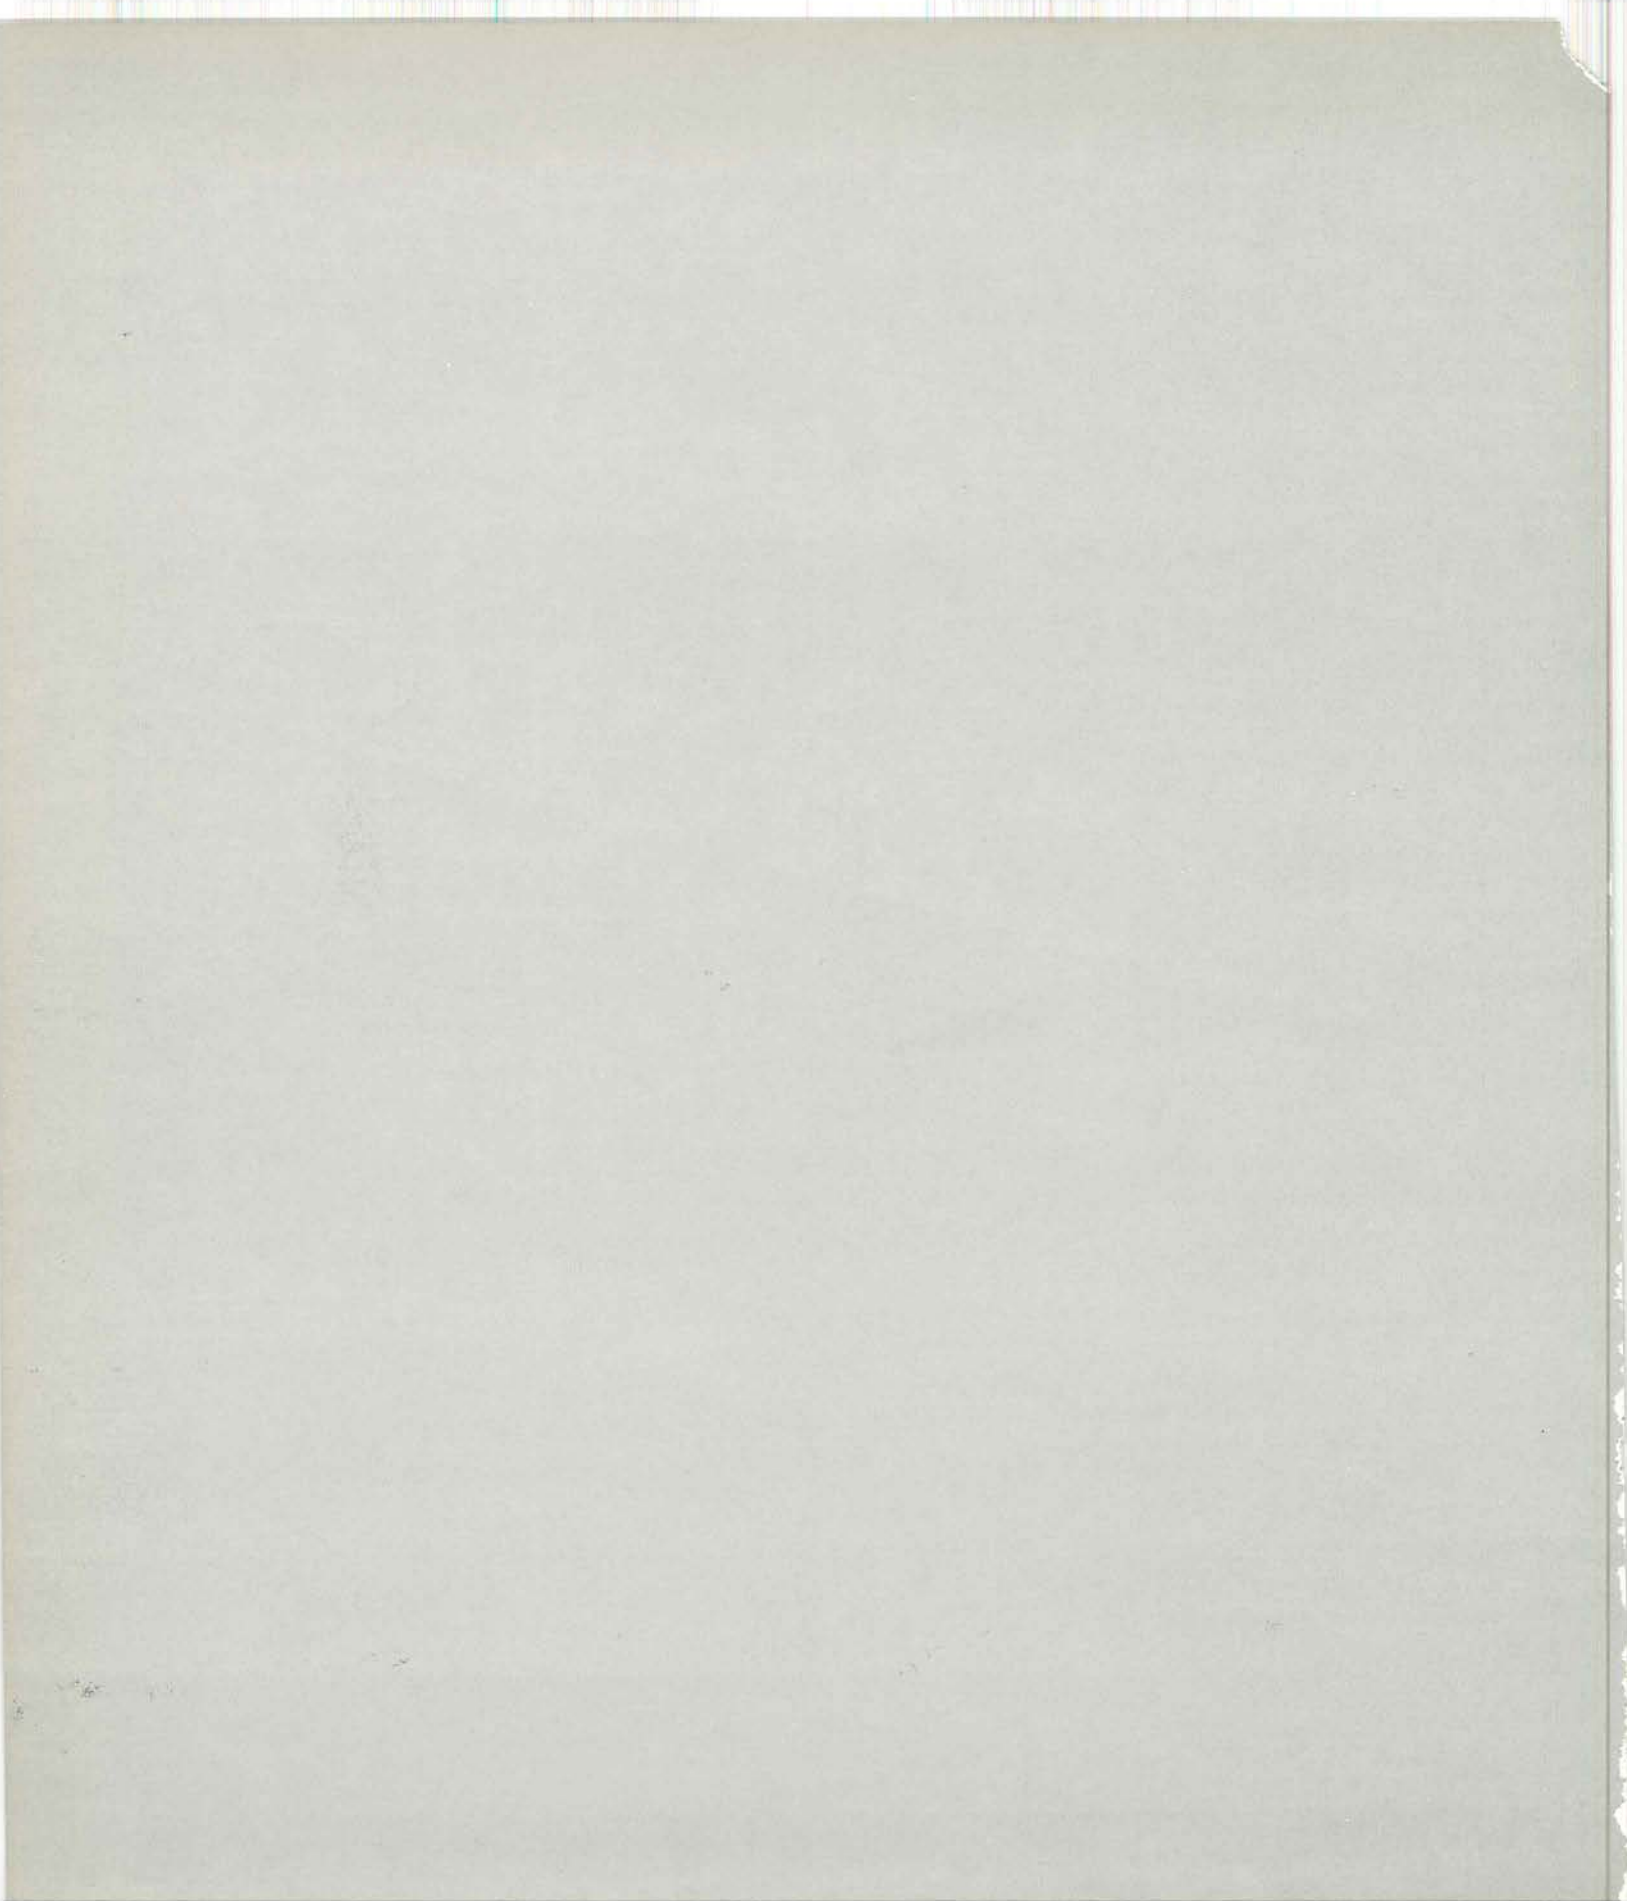

But now you've wished me a "very, very pleasant . . . good night" for the last time and that's it. Not like Santa Claus " . . . and to all a good night" that comes back every year like clockwork. That was the last goodnight. Just . . . "goodnight."

For four years I've been instructed to look forward to graduation, look forward to graduation, look forward to graduation. For four months it's been visible out by the horizon, never getting any bigger the closer it comes, but never obscured. Just hangs there, you know. But now it's coming on fast, big as a boxcar, far away as it still is. It'll be big as a house when it hits me. No way to slow it or blunt it or anything. I reckon it'll be like I thought it wouldn't be: quick. And before I ever hear it, it'll hit me and carry me off.

Yeah – goodnight, Moho.

K. Conning

There was this book,
we wanted it to be about people –
people being people –
people being Muskingum.
That is the way we saw it to be,
but somewhere along the line
it stopped being mine/ours and became theirs –
the people of this place.

And so, I/we have given you this
book,
be happy/sad over it,
but know that it is yours
