Sun
    glorious
        Sun
enhanced by
    dancing trees
        drifting, shifting
to the beat of hints of autumn wind Sifting / through strands of hair September first,
    and we are here
        together.

Morning Song

Homecoming

Such beautiful weather
but last week would have been better.
Would've been more leaves on the trees instead of so many below your knees.

WINTER

Powdered clusters
migrate silently,
flowing from above . . .
decorated beauty,
loneliness a new neighbor.
Windows shut tight,
inside, doors are warmly open.
Companionships
develop in an attempt to make the days longer —
fighting together
against
the solid
blackness
of night.

Ten People. Ten individuals, all calling one house "home". Ten identities bound together as one, but remaining themselves. Five bedrooms, five sets of roommates. Eight girls sharing one upstairs bathroom. And one hot-water heater. And one conviction that it is possible.

Early-morning stupor and giggling about how silly so-and-so looked last night with that hat on. Ten girls getting up at various hours, going in various directions, with various obligations to meet. Ten very different girls, calling one house "home".

Supper-hour banter. The time of day to tell guess-who-I-saw today stories and to discuss Dr. X's chemistry exam and the U.S. policy of detente. A reaffirmation of togetherness and caring. A re-molding of the links of understanding friendship. Quiet thoughts unspoken or boisterous tales told aloud. The day is over and the night's activities not yet begun. Mellow. At ease. Sleepy.

Ten girls, relaxing in each other's company. Putting off the time that they must go to the library. Ten girls, ten personalities, ten different lifestyles. Living together, all calling one house "home".

SPRING

Slowly,
I stroll
to harness my knowledge
between walls.
Promise of summertime weather
distracts involvement
with books and notes
and windows that turn nature away.
Even the distance has become agony.
Finally,
When frustrations close books and satisfaction
loads them for travel,
an open door smiles
to the sweeping trees
that steal the pressure of school
away
and replace my mind
with sweet,
    sweet serenity,
And the walk is not long enough.

History

Us,
In appreciation of life's splendors and with full recollection of emotional experiences — distorted, redistributed, and forever changing in the four year span of development,
With the knowledge of what it all means to us, Move on to challenge our visions and interpretations of what could possibly be.

Amidst the problems and complications accompanying the production of our yearbook, several individuals deserve special appreciation. To render a mere thanks seems inappropriate. So – with much appreciation and sincere warm thoughts I would like to specially thank John Urian, our Keller representative, for his outstanding and remarkable energy, stamina, knowledge, patience, and his fantastic humor. A unique person.

Special thanks to the public relations office – personally to Mike Morrison, Clair Stebbins, and Peggy Wince for their tremendous help and cooperation. A fantastic team. To Joe Crilley for his artistic eye, photography contributions, and making the world look a little brighter. Fred Call and Doug Harms for photography contributions. Kathryn Brenneman, Terry Scherer, and Marcia for their poems and essays.

To Anne L. for her assistance and smiles. Gail Yaggi for her efforts and intentions. Bob, Terry, and Marcia – Thank You for all your help and inspiration – X

Marcia, Good Luck Next Year
